IMPROVEMENTS, FAIR GROUND, PLANNED

Elimination of Race Track Hump, Enlargement of Grand Stand and Extension of Poultry House Decided Upon

The board of directors of the Lorain County Agricultural Society met Saturday afternoon and decided on several improvements at the fair ground. They decided to have the ground at the southwest corner of the race track oval cut down so that a view can be obtained of the horses all the way around the track. At present the ground is so high that people in the grand stand as well as the judges do not have a view of the horses all the time during a race. It was also decided to enlarge the grand stand by building it nearer the track. More seating capacity is needed, and it is proposed to put in some box seats that can be reserved. A number of other improvements are contemplated, among them being an extension to the poultry house.

WHITE CHRISTMAS
COLUMBUS, Dec. 22.—A white Christmas. This widespread hope appeared today likely to be realized in Ohio. United States Weatherman Alexander predicted light snow with slowly rising temperature tonight and Tuesday, with colder weather Tuesday night or Wednesday. The snow flurries which visited Columbus and other sections of the state, Alexander said, was the forerunner for a number of similar visitations between now and Christmas day with weather likely to permit mother earth to retain her mantle of white over Christmas.

DEATHS IN WEST
CHICAGO, Dec. 22.—A blizzard was roaring out of the west today to replace the Arctic temperatures which for three days have wrought havoc in the Mississippi valley and the surrounding territory. Temperatures were slowly rising today as the first of the snows whirled about the Middle western states and the weather bureau here announced that the backbone of the season's first severe cold wave was definitely broken.

The affected area today was struggling back to normalcy, restoring wire service disrupted by the cold and the sleet, which preceded it and checking the damage to crops and property which the frigid temperatures brought. In the Mississippi valley alone, it was estimated this would run to over $1,000,000 and the total damage throughout the mid west, it was expected, probably will run to two or three times this.

The death toll from the storm and cold today was placed conservatively at 50. This included fatalities directly due to the cold, cases where victims were found frozen to death—and those attributable indirectly to the weather overheated furnaces and various other causes.

WARMER IN PENNA.
PITTSBURGH, Pa., Dec. 22.—Icebound in the grip of the cold weather of the winter, western Penna. was promised some relief by the weatherman's prediction of snow and warmer today. The temperature dropped to 10 degrees above zero yesterday and 13 above today.

In and around Toledo more than 1200 poles of the Ohio Bell Telephone company were down due to the storm, and linemen were working overtime to repair the damage.

MALE DEBATE WIN FROM WOMEN WHO CHAMPIONED "BOB"

DEFIANCE, O., Dec. 22.—Hearken, ye maidens, whose locks are shorn, to the voice of student debaters. The pendulum of fashion is swinging back. Long tresses, hanging about the knees, are now much to be desired over those that stop short just below the ears. This is the argument by which two male debaters at Defiance College, Thomas White and Carl Dille, arguing for long hair, won over Misses Hazel Perry and Lela Imobersteg, who defended the shingle bob, the "King Tut," the "sweetheart," "Buster Brown," "pineapple," and any other brand of close-cropping that may have been devised.

A new film, "The Queen of Slaves," based on Sir Rider Haggard's novel, "The Moon of Israel," has had some severe cutting at the hands of the Budapest censor. The film pictures the slavery of the Jews in Egypt, but the censor objected that the Jews should be able to cross the Red Sea with dry feet while the Egyptians had to drown in the tide. The censor, an anti-Semite, declared this part of the picture pro-Jewish propaganda and said it could not be permitted in a Christian "racist" country.

DAVID GIVES WORD PICTURE OF FAR EAST

Eulogizes Ghandi as Great Power for Good in India and Says America Can Help

Harry White, International Y. M. C. A. secretary of the Y. W. C. A. gave an exceedingly interesting talk on "Ghandi, and India Progress," at the open forum meeting at the Church of Christ yesterday afternoon.

He asserted that Ghandi was one of the most powerful men in personality and prestige that India has ever known. The speaker proceeded to give a history of early India, and the wave of Mohammedanism that invaded the country, followed by the coming of the English, and the efforts made by that country in ruling the nation.

At present he stated that the English were gradually putting into effect the Chelmsford-Montagu reform measure which was in effect home rule on the installment plan Ghandi, he said, was the heart and soul of this movement. He was a godly man, who was a deep student of the Bible, a man who cares for the real soul of things.

He asserted that Ghandi advocates against force or co-operating with wrong in any form, but rather to withdraw from it in that way he believes more can be accomplished for the good not only of India but for the entire world. This non-co-operative movement, the speaker said, was a wonderful one and it was bringing the people of India together so that all classes understood each other better. India, he said, was looking toward America, as never before, to lift the cloud, and bring in the spirit of Christ that would eventually redeem the people. He expected to see Ghandi named as the head of the body that was to meet on the home rule question, and said that the man was reversed by not only his own people but by the Mohammedans as well, for what he really was.

GLATTSTEIN SELLS OUT HIS BUSINESS

Adolph Glattstein, well known Western Heights general merchant, has sold his building and store to John Swartz, a Pennsylvania man, who has announced Glattstein has been familiarly called "The Count," and the "Mayor of Western Heights," by reason of the fact that the people of that vicinity go to him for advice, and when they are in trouble. At one time during the panic of sixteen years ago, Glattstein supported the families of many men who were out of work, and trusted to better times to get his money. He claims to be the founder of Western Heights, going there twenty years ago when there were but three houses in that locality. He states he will continue to live here, and will look after other business. He is an interesting man to talk to, claims to have been a former Indian scout, and he can talk a number of languages.

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

George W. Wickersham, who has been appointed the American member of the International Committee for the Codification of International Law, is best remembered as Attorney-General of the United States in the cabinet of President Taft. Previously he had been a successful and highly paid lawyer in Philadelphia and in New York; and on his retirement from the cabinet he settled in New York and resumed legal practice. He is a native of Pittsburgh and was educated at Lehigh University. His professional services have been at the disposal of some of the largest corporations in America, notably those engaged in transportation; and, when he had the people of the country as a client, his technical knowledge of the inner management of business on a large scale proved useful to him as a prosecutor of "trusts." Aside from his strictly professional work Mr. Wickersham has often figured prominently in the public discussion of contemporary political and economic issues.

In four years the University of Chicago football team has lost only two games out of eighteen played.

mother to the younger, who is spoiled, selfish and self-willed. Finally circumstances cause the elder sister to rebel against the tyranny of her sister. The picture is worth seeing.

Dreamland—A good western picture can be seen here today. That is peppy, and has some startling action. Also a very good comedy.

BILLY WHISKERS

Billy, Nannie, Stubby and Button, reunited at the moving picture studio, were planning their escape. Nannie said to wait until a good chance came along. "Oh, that is just like you, Nannie! To try and do things in a peaceful manner," said Billy. "I tell you I am so tired and impatient at being kept here so long I can't wait quietly another day. I must do something or blow up."

"What is causing all that commotion over in the animal house, I wonder," said Billy.

"I don't know, but it sounds to me as if the baboons were having a fight with the monkeys from the way Maggie, that disagreeable, nasty monkey, is screaming," replied Button.

"You and Stubby are not tied like Nannie and me. Suppose you two run over and see what is going on."

So the two ran over but could not get in to see what was up, until Button thought of a tree on the other side of the house that grew straight up against a window. When he thought of this he ran around the house, up the tree, and looked in the window. And this is what he saw:

The big baboon, Mike, and the bear, Ben, were standing on their hind legs having a boxing match. At least it looked that way for they were standing on their hind legs boxing each other on the side of the head and growling as they did so. Above them, hanging by her tail was Maggie, the imp of a monkey, pulling their hair or ears as she swung over their heads and screamed. To add to all the noise and confusion Button sat on her perch and screeched in her shrillest voice, "Beat him! Beat him up!" and all the other animals in the house paced a gun. Down went the riotous up and down their cages growling and spitting their dislike of all this commotion.

When Button went back and told what was going on, Billy said, "I better than to get into the thick of just giving it was there. I should enjoy watching that fight."

He just wished that Maggie and Polly were so big and strong.

TODAY'S BEST STORY
Licking county residents are indebted to Safety Director McCune, of Columbus, for the new coat of paint their courthouse is to have by the first of the year. Shortly after he was awarded the courthouse contract, the painter who was to brighten the courthouse went to Columbus where he had an argument with a patrolman who arrested him for driving an automobile while intoxicated. The judge sentenced the painter to 30 days in the city jail. Then a deal was arranged between the Licking county sheriff and the safety director whereby the painter was released from jail to continue his work. "But you must return him to furnish his sentence when your courthouse is painted,"

CHRISTMAS FESTIVITIES HERE GIVE JOY TO MANY CHILDREN

The technical high school auditorium was filled to capacity Sunday afternoon with the families of the Loyal Order of Moose on the occasion of their Christmas exercises. A crowd estimated at eight hundred was present, and the exercises were followed by a very pleasant time.

A eight-piece orchestra played several selections, and music was also furnished by F. L. Brown, who sang "The Holy Child" in fine voice, and J. H. Harris, who also sang two selections that were very pleasing. A pleasing feature also was the singing of Mrs. Elizabeth C. H. Pelton and her two sons, Earl and Donald, and a violin duet by two little boys.

Rev. W. L. Burner gave a fine Christmas address, in which he stated that if one wished to find the best in life one must follow the "Star of Bethlehem." Superintendent C. H. Pelton told of the work done in the Gates Home for Crippled Children, and the good that is being done there. A reel of moving pictures was also shown to the delight of the children.

Santa Claus, represented by Frank Henke, made a hit with the children, as he was ably assisted by two young ladies. Every child present received a package of fruit, a toy, book and some fruit, and the ladies were given boxes of candy and a handkerchief. The exercises were under the direction of Past Dictator Krushman.

The Moose will make their usual Christmas visits to the Oberlin Children's Home, the County Home, and the Gates Home for Crippled Children to tribute gifts.

EAGLES CELEBRATE
The Christmas spirit rang true to the hearts of several hundred youngsters and their parents when Kris Kringle romped about a beautifully decorated tree at the Elyria Eagles Christmas party held in the Rialto theater Sunday afternoon.

The entertainment program consisted of the regular theater vaudeville and motion picture program, arranged by J. O. Woodward, manager of the Rialto.

The Christmas tree was the last word in holiday makeup and beauty. Joe Boddy impersonated the reindeer driver and presented every kiddie at the party with

The Calm Way in Which Lee Chow Departed.

KATHERINE made a note or two on a little pad of paper then crossed to the door.

"I shall have to get some things from the drug room," she said, "but I won't be gone long. Do you wish me to give any message to Katie and Marion, or do you want them up here?"

"Won't they bother you?" I asked. "Not a bit," she answered cheerily. "This isn't a major operation you know."

Her smile and manner took away the last remnant of fear for my little lad, though of course I had known from Dr. Pettit's verdict that there were no serious consequences to be feared from the mysterious poison that had so swollen and discolored Junior's face and eyes.

"Then let them come up," I decided, "but—will Marion have time to run out to the car while you are in the drug room?"

"At Marion's usual gait—yes," she answered, smiling.

"Then please ask her to tell Lee Chow that we shall be here about—"

"An hour," she responded. "And to say that there is nothing serious the matter with Junior and that—"

"I hesitated a second, then added, 'It was not the clams.'"

Katherine elevated her eyebrows whimsically as she turned the door-knob.

"I'll deliver your message," she said, "and I won't stop now to find out who Lee Chow is. But when I come back I'm going to ascertain whether I'd better order a strait jacket for you or whether a sedative will do."

She went swiftly down the corridor, to return shortly with Marion and Katie in her wake—Marion, silent and self-effacing, Katie voluble in her relief that Junior was not seriously ill.

"Eet mighty goot ting dot old Chink didn't get enough poison in dose clams to hurt dot babee moom," she began as soon as she came in, but I cut her short sharply.

"Don't let me hear you say that cruel and untrue thing again, Katie!" I said sternly. "Dr. Pettit says it was not the clams at all, that the poison is from something Junior handled. Lee Chow had nothing to do with it."

She stared at me, cowed but unconvinced, and as she turned away I heard her mutter something disparaging to Dr. Pettit, but I knew that she would say nothing more before Lee Chow which was all I wanted. I cared no whit what her private opinion of the Chinese might be, and would make no effort to change her distorted idea of him. But I was resolved that she should bait the Oriental no more.

Katherine worked swiftly, bathing Junior with lotions, and carrying out the other directions of Dr. Pettit. When she had finished it was a tired but much more comfortable little lad whom she gathered up in her arms.

"Auntie Katherine's to carry you downstairs," she announced, and Junior as docile under her dictum as he had been obstinate against Katie's similar offer, laid his head confidently against her shoulder and was asleep by the time we reached the car.

"Get in, Madge," Katherine whispered, "and I'll hand him to you."

I obeyed her, Katie took the seat beside me, and Marion clambered again to her post beside Lee Chow. Now Katherine look sharply at Lee Chow as I gave him the directions for driving to the farmhouse, and knew that the explanation of the man's presence which I had given her could never satisfy the keen brain of either Katherine or Marion, although I also knew that neither woman would ever seek to satisfy her curiosity unbidden.

We reached the farmhouse in good time, and when Lee Chow had brought the car to a stop, he stepped out of it and helped me to alight. Then with a low bow he asked respectfully:

"Boss lady need me any more to-night?"

"No, thank you, Lee Chow," "Then I go," he announced calmly. "If boss lady want Lee Chow in big hurry, can tell cousin in laund'. But Lee Chow will know when boss lady need him."

He turned away, and the next second was padding swiftly away down the drive.

A lot of people will never enjoy life until they can earn money as easily as they spend it.

A woman's place may be in the home, but her daughter's place seems to be in the movies.

"SHOES TOO" THE CORNER STORRE

OBERLIN

By Mrs. W. E. CHAPIN

OBERLIN MOVES TO HELP NEEDY

OBERLIN, Dec. 22.—The Exchange club has raised twenty-five dollars and turned it over to the visiting nurse committee of the Oberlin Women's club for distribution among the poor of the village.

Mrs. Kemper Fullerton, head of the committee, reported yesterday that fifteen baskets had been made up from the food brought by the children of Oberlin to the Apollo theatre Saturday morning when a picture was shown free by Ira W. West. These baskets were distributed today by Mr. George Dudley who has charge of the local delivery service. Several articles of clothing were also received according to Mrs. Fullerton and these are to be given to needy families in the village.

The amount of food and clothing were not so great as last year, due to the extremely cold and disagreeable day Saturday. The habit of giving a movie to which the admission is some gift for the poor has been carried on by Mr. West since 1922 when he discovered an spelling need for such aid in Oberlin. The response has always been met by the Oberlin young folks and many families made happy at the Christmas time that otherwise would have had no holiday luxury at all.

CHRISTMAS TREES IN FRONT OF ALL STORES

OBERLIN, Dec. 22.—Oberlin's Community Christmas program began Sunday night with a union service held in the Methodist church and about the Community Christmas tree on the south side of the college campus.

Dean Thos. W. Graham addressed the meeting in the church with a brief discourse on the Christmas spirit. Singing was led by Professor Gehrkens of the Conservatory. After this service the audience adjourned to the tree where Christmas carols were sung.

This tree with a lighted star on the southeast corner of the campus and the small trees which were placed in front of all places of business at the suggestion of the Women's Club, have added greatly to the feeling of Christmas and holiday time in Oberlin, making up in part for the lack of snow.

But one Oberlin merchant refused to place a small evergreen in front of his place of business when the request was made by the Women's Club. It is reported that he did likewise when this fact became known.

125 STUDENTS REMAIN FOR HOLIDAY VACATION

OBERLIN, Dec. 22.—Holiday events for those students who are remaining in Oberlin for the Christmas vacation began Saturday night with a party in the Women's Gymnasium. Games and dancing were participated in by about 125 students.

These students are to hold a Christmas party Wednesday night in Rico Recreation Hall.

College girls who are spending the vacation in Oberlin are located at Lord and Bascomb cottages.

OBERLIN BRIEFS

OBERLIN, Dec. 22.—State Senator W. R. Comings, of Elyria, and Mr. and Mrs. Louis Rice, of Philadelphia, were in Oberlin yesterday to attend the funeral of Mrs. A. D. Comings, of 110 West College street, who died suddenly Thursday afternoon. The funeral was held from the home of the deceased at 3 p. m., and interment was made in Westwood cemetery. Rev. Nicholas Van der pyl was in charge of the funeral service.

Arthur Carruthers and Maynard Mack are among the Oberlin young people attending college in other educational centers who have returned for the holidays.

More than $14,000 was pledged for the support of the benevolence and expansion of the Congregational church in the every-member canvass held last week, according to a report made yesterday. This is more than $500 more than was pledged last year. Not all pledges were in yesterday.

Born, to Mr. and Mrs. John Chapin, of Oberlin, in the Oberlin hospital, Saturday morning, a daughter.

Mrs. Helen M. Rice, who has been ill for some time at the Oberlin hospital is improving rapidly, it was reported yesterday.

Cornelius Neilson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Neilson, who is a student at Ohio State, returned home for the holidays Sunday morning.

J. L. McCormick, instructor in Organ and Theory at Gainesville, Georgia, spent Saturday and Sunday as the guest of student friends. He graduated from the Conservatory of music here in 1923. He left for his home in New York State Monday morning.

Eugene Phelps, of Columbia Cross Roads, Pa., is visiting Miss Madge Worcester over the week end. Phelps, who graduated from Oberlin college in 1924, is teaching at Greenville, Ohio.

J. L. Kinney is ill in the Oberlin hospital.

Skating began at Gaiter's rink early this morning as a result of the cold snap which struck Oberlin Saturday. The ice is reported better than at any time last season, and if the cold continues without snow, the skating will last. A large number took advantage of the ice this morning. This is practically the only outdoor winter sport in Oberlin.

An inter-denominational women's prayer service is to be held this afternoon at the home of Mrs. Hayden Durr, 181 West College street.

The junior department of the United Congregational church will hold a Christmas party Tuesday evening in the James Brand House.

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Chronic coughs and persistent colds lead to serious lung trouble. You can stop them now with Creosote, an emulsified creosote that is a new medical discovery with two-fold action: It soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and kills the germ.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by the medical fraternity as the greatest healing agency for the treatment of chronic coughs and colds and other forms of throat and lung troubles. Creosote contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stops the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and destroys the germs that lead to consumption.

Creosomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of chronic coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, catarrh, laryngitis and other forms of throat and lung diseases, and is excellent for banding up the system after colds or the flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking Creosomulsion. Ask your druggist. Creosomulsion Co., Atlanta, Ga.

LONDON, Dec. 22.—Nikita Bal-

Balliff, with his bland face and

The new Lord Mayor of London physicians have ordered that he shall exercise daily; therefore he may be seen almost any day walktrance of the Savoy to sample one of Harry Craddock's American cocktails.

Queen Mary's memory for faces is remarkable, and a slight slip which she made the other day serves to emphasize it. When she was doing her Christmas shopping in Bond street she pass-salutation. The Queen acknowledged it, but did not show any trace of recognition.

The day after, however, Mrs.

Queen's Lady in Waiting saying that "Her Majesty had immedi-

A Merry Christmas
for my Wife

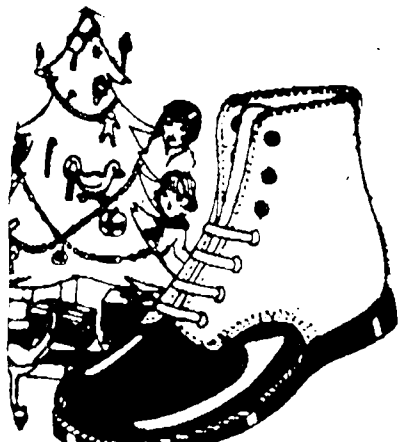

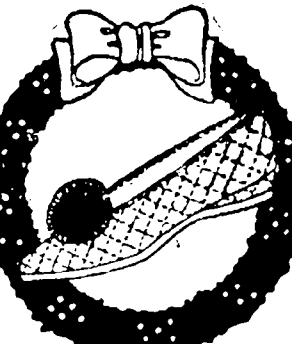

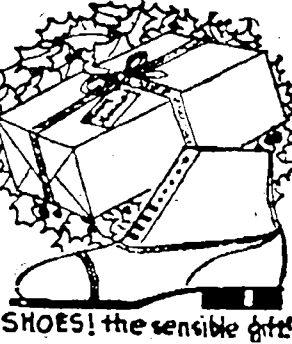

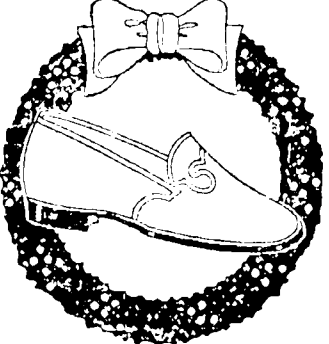

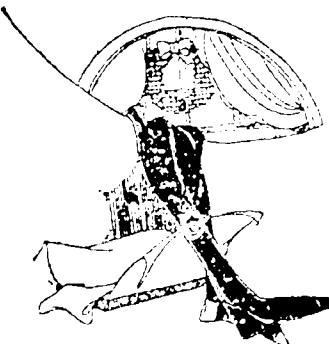

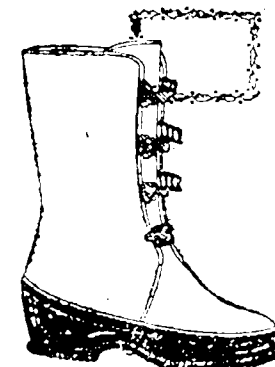

Why not make this the Merriest
Christmas your wife has ever had?

*Oh, what in the world can I give my sweet wife,
She has everything that she wants in this life,
A chest of fine silver—
A sable-trimmed coat—
Why, neither would strike a responsive note.
But women all seem
To have one strange desire—
Financial freedom they try to acquire.
A mere Twenty Dollars
When attached to their name,
Means more than a Million
Friend Husband could claim.
Now, I've an idea any wife would adore—
A Debenture D Bond, or probably more
A sense of security, a lesson in Thrift—
By Golly, that strikes me as one dandy gift.
It sure will be different and strikingly new—
And that's what your wife is expecting from you.
A valuable gift and priceless treasure—
Its earning power is beyond all measure.
Why, anyone could be proud of this gift
And also be schooled in the science of Thrift,
For every so often the old check comes around
And a happier lady can never be found
Than the little wife, whom you gave a Debenture D—
Instead of some useless worn-out novelty.*

Elyria High Plays Alumni On Tuesday

BY "GINNIE" SAUNDERS
Tuesday night, December 23rd, Elyria High's basketball team will play a game that was not formerly included in the printed schedule, being one against their fiercest of opponents, the Alumni of Elyria High. It has been the custom for many years for the varsity crew to take on the past stars turned out by the school and Manager Laver has completed the arrangements for the traditional game to be held tomorrow night.

Despite the recent victory over Garfield Heights the 1924 team is not running into any easy game when it tackles the Alumni with such well remembered stars as Buswell, Koppes, Danglefield, Houserman, Granger, Krugman, Guthman and Krause included in the opposing lineup. Koppes and Buswells' worth may be brought out by the fact that they recently won positions on the "Prosh" team of Ohio Wesleyan University a honor sought after by many candidates. "Dinger" Danglefield, "Phil" Houserman, and "Speed" Krugman are last year's products while Granger and Krause add a few more years to their practice. Elyria has so far this year, one defeat and one victory to its credit, besides fond hopes for the forthcoming games.

The Alumni will no doubt present one of the most formidable lines of the season's layout, with their speedy passers and sure shooters, and it is expected that the spectators will have the chance to view some real action and a lively scrimmage.

Preceding the game an inter-class game between the Freshmen and Seniors will take place, an event that is always charged with great rivalry and plenty of class spirit. This preliminary game begins at seven o'clock. The regular game starts promptly at eight o'clock.

SPORTS DONE BY BROWN

THE winter often seems long to ball players for many reasons. Some of them blow the season down in a hurry and then look forward longingly to the first pay check next April. Others long for the three squares dished out at the hotels at the ball club's expense.

Others just naturally hanker for the feel of the old bat or the fielder's glove.

But Eddie Moore of the Pirates has still a different reason for being impatient at the way the winter weeks drag. Every time Eddie reads an item referring to the wholesale swap the Pirates and Cubs engineered a while back which sent Rabbit Maranville from Pittsburgh to the Windy town he starts praying for spring. For he realizes that the departure of the veteran infielder is a snuff that he will be given a chance to play second base regularly for the Bucanier crew next season.

Moore showed clearly by his infighting last season that he can fill the bill. He was obtained by the Pirates from Atlanta as a second baseman. Maranville's presence eliminated all chance of him playing that sack last season. He was used at third, however, in Pie Travnor's shoes and played brilliantly, heady ball. Then, shifted to the outfield for a time, he continued to field phenomenally and hit the ball at a merry clip.

He broke into 72 games and collected a combined batting average of .361. He socked eight doubles, four triples and a couple of circuit wallpats. His batting average was a few points above that of Hazen Cuyler.

He had served two years in fast company before joining the Pirates, Atlanta having him in 1922 and 1923. He started with Omaha in 1921, was shipped almost immediately to Dyersburg and moved from that town to the southern metropolis.

Are the coal mines of Pennsylvania that have produced so many big league ball players about to produce a boxing champion? Fans who have seen young Jack De Mave, who bears the ring name of "The Fighting Loon," say that is a possibility.

De Mave, in a few short months, has proved such a clever boxer and hard socker that New York promoters are trying to match him with Paul Berlenbach and other leading light heavyweights to give him a better chance to show his stuff.

De Mave hails from Holland. He was born in Amsterdam, just 21 years ago. His parents came to this country some years ago and settled in the Pennsy coal mine district. Young Jack soon found wrestling to be his forte and had gained quite a rep on the mat when a referee at one of these brawls decided the young husky had the makings of a boxer. He took Jack to one side and talked him into entering a boxing tourney to be staged the same evening.

De Mave went into the ring with his wrestling trunks on and socked a big colorful hopeful for a row of nine cars in the very first round. A few weeks later De Mave, living in New York, looking for bigger game. He got it until his mule kick made some of the big boys modest and retiring.

Sport Sparks

Artie Flecher, pilot of Phillies, announces that his ball club will be subjected to thorough housecleaning and that many new faces will be seen in Slowtown's family album next season. This is the best news Philly fans have had since Cornelius McGillicuddy won his first pennant.

After junkman calls for remnants of Philly apple-knockers, Fletcher will install new and expensive bric-a-brac. Old-timers who have been drawing their pay for fanning the air fourteen times each game will be presented with electric fans and asked to retire.

Fletcher's move should bring rewards in a financial way at least. Fans in Philadelphia and other National League cities will come out to see a new team play where they wouldn't give a nickel to watch old-timers rejuvenated by monkey glands.

Philly club suffered financial reverse last season in freak lawsuits. Profits of one entire week were lost when magistrate ruled that small boy might keep ball batted into bleachers.

Every time Cy Williams poked four-bagger over short right field wall fans went wild and magistrates went broke.

Phillies finished seventh last season, so mathematical sharks figure they should win pennant in seven more years—but you can't make anybody in Philadelphia believe it.

pleased to regard Notre Dame as a walk in against Stanford on New Year's day to recollect that all too few eastern and middle-western teams have been able to invade Pasadena and bring their best form with them. The climatic change is too abrupt for one thing. The transcontinental journey dulls the find edge of condition, for another.

AMHERST LOSES TO SANDUSKY HI CAGERS

SANDUSKY, Dec. 22.—The Sandusky high basketball team at the high school gym Saturday evening before a capacity crowd that had the satisfaction, at least, of seeing the Sanduskians mow down the invading Amherst hosts for an easily earned but much desired 34 to 16 victory.

The game was mainly one of wild scrambles for the big leather, and of Sandusky field goals sizzling through the nets. At times the encounter assumed more the aspect of a football game than a basket ball match. The passing of both teams was ragged and inaccurate for most part, but so far as the clan of Miller goes, their errors were excusable, and they won their first game fairly against a team that had been well primed by some three or four weeks previous play to take them across.

Considering the fact that it was their first game of the season stage fright made them nervous, and experience led them to some wild acts, Sandusky did not do at all badly. Out of the 56 attempted shots, 14 were good for field goals. Amherst shot 40 times and made but three of them count.

The lineups and summary: Sandusky—34 Amherst—10. Nicholson, RF, Dute, Hein, LF, Tobbert, Cunningham, C, Guiselman, Shane, RG, Taylor, Homberger, LG, Smith, Field goals—Nicholson 3, Hein, 2, Dute, 2, Ludwig, Guiselman.

DINNER STORIES

An ancient car chugged painfully up to the gate at the races. The gate-keeper demanding the usual fee for automobiles, called: "A dollar for the car."

The owner looked up with a pathetic smile of relief and said: "Sold."

The debutante was alarmed over the prospect of being taken in to dinner by the distinguished statesman. "Whatever can we talk about?" she demanded anxiously of her mother.

Afterward, in the drawing-room, she came to her mother with a radiant smile. "He's fine," she exclaimed. "We weren't half way through the soup before we were chatting cozily about the fleas in Italian hotels."

BELDEN GIRLS DISPLAY CLASS AT LA GRANGE

LAGRANGE, Dec. 22.—The high school boys and girls went to Belden Friday night to play basketball, and showed improvement over their game with Avon. The first game was between the girls of the two schools. Belden showed superiority and won 32 to 0.

The game between the boys was a close one, however and was won by Belden 27 to 23. LaGrange suffered when the two regular forwards were disqualified on personal fouls. Hopkins, for LaGrange, made four goals, and four fouls, and Schuster, for Belden made six goals and two fouls.

The outstanding men were Aldrich and Firestone for Spencer and Sponseller and Kepler for Wellington. Horror played a good defensive game for Spencer.

SPORT FLASHES

NEW YORK, Dec. 22.—Protests by New York fans against the deal, whereby the Yankees regained possession of Urban Shocker, displayed increasing volume today. The consensus was that the yankees had got the worst of the transaction in sending Joe Bush, pitcher and pinch hitter and Milton Gaston and Joe Giard, recruit pitchers to St. Louis for the veteran spitballer. Much of the dissatisfaction is centered around Bush, who not only pitched a good ball but hit well while in a Yankee uniform.

DETROIT, Mich., Dec. 22.—Detroit bowlers carried off a great share of the honor in the Central States Bowlers' association which ended last night. Auto city pin splitters grammed first in the two-man event, first in the singles and first in the all events. The Central Recreation Five of Erie, Pa., forged to the front in the five nosing out the Louis Petersens of Chicago by 21 pins. Walter Repenhagen and Ernie Hartman of Detroit are the two man champions by virtue of their record breaking score of 1419. Ed Katsch of Detroit, took first place in the singles with 705 and Hartman is the All-events king with a 2,024 total.

EDITOR'S "TEN COMMANDMENTS"

We came across a group of an editor's "Ten Commandments," the other day. They were drawn by the editor of the Christian Register. With slight changes, we believe that they are ideal for an editor. Let us give them.

1. "Love God and do your stint."
2. "Have a policy and stand by it."
3. "Fear nobody, and tell the truth."
4. "Be positive for the good and against the evil."
5. "Like people as much as you like ideas."
6. "Keep your temper, especially under fire."
7. "Place human values first always."
8. "Take critics (and yourself) not too seriously."
9. "Have confidence in the triumph of truth."
10. "Espouse every great cause, and be swift."

Perhaps it would not be a bad thing if more of us would take these ten commandments as rules of private action. They would be of value, as well, in that respect, as in editorial work.

PROPAGANDA

An "extremely charming and pleasing public speaker" from a neighboring city spoke in another Ohio city the other day on the subject "The Public Utilities and the Supremacy of the Girl of the Present over the Seventeenth Century Queen." She is frank. She says that she is going to talk on the Public Utilities. She should be congratulated on her frankness.

But she must be new at this Public Utilities work or she would have announced as her subject "The Supremacy of the Girl of the Present Over the Seventeenth Century Queen," and proceeded to talk on the Public Utilities just the same. We could reproduce her "line." Anyone could. It is one of the methods of propaganda which every thinking person must resent to point of becoming angry. It is a sugar coated pill. Only the idea is that if people are stupid enough they will not know they are taking a pill at all. The idea will be gotten over and much talk on the present wonders of the age contrasted with the differences of the past. The psychologists have some learned name for that method of putting an idea over in the minds of the people. The plan being that merely coming in contact with an idea or seeing an ad, though the person may not be conscious of reading it, affects his mind just the same and produces the results for the advertiser, and in this case for the Public Utilities whether the gas company or the electric company or something else.

The idea is to impress us with the inestimable value of the service they render and put us in a frame of mind to gladly and willingly accede to their demands when they make them.

It produces a condition where we have to go about mentally armed against propaganda. It may be just as well, however, for it keeps us mentally alert. In fact it is all well and good if we recognize the necessity of keeping mentally alert, but some of us don't and so it is "put over on us."

RESPITE OUT OF CONFUSION

By a confusion of names before the Supreme Court, a man received a stay of execution the other day. Three hours before the time appointed, when he should be placed in the electric chair, a man by the name of Kane had received a stay of execution, not of himself, but of a fine for violation of the child labor law. The name Kendall and Kane were confused and one of the judges noting that Kane was expected to die and that no notice had been given and thinking it was the same case as had been acted upon favorably, the telephone wires were gotten busy and the Governor granted a reprieve to Kane. This confusion of names gave him two or three weeks of extra life and this came within three hours of his hour of doom.

We doubt seriously if anyone would be thankful for such a period of respite. While all this was due to an accident, we are glad that the interest of the judges and the Governor was such that they saved the man, even by mistake, rather than to have delayed longer and understood it more thoroughly. Human life had its appeal to the extent of overcoming the usual red tape.

WHO'S WHO IN THE DAY'S NEWS

LEONID KRASSIN

Leon I. Krassin, first Ambassador of the Union of Russia Soviet Socialist Republics to be accredited to France, was hailed as the harbinger of revolution by a Communist crowd on his arrival in Paris.

For Krassin, comes to France not only as the representative of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, a Government recognized by Germany, Italy, Great Britain, France, but also as the agent of a Communist revolution which controls the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, and constantly conspires to overthrow those Governments which have recognized it.

Krassin, by documents in the possession of the Washington State Department, is shown to be a striking example of an official identified with both the visible and the invisible governments of Soviet Russia—as example of the interlocking of official and political posts.

In the first place, he is a member of the All-Russian Central Executive Committee of the Russian Soviet Republic, in the Union he is also a member of the Central Executive Committee, he is on the People's Commissars, or Cabinet Ministers—the Foreign Trade Commissar, also Commissar for Finance.

But Krassin holds political positions as well as official. He is, according to available documents, a member of the "Ikki" or Central Executive Committee of the Russian Communist Party, which directs the Communist revolution throughout the world. Before he was appointed to the Paris post he had been charged by the "Ikki" with the duty of seeing Government officials and diplomatic representatives of different countries in Europe and more recently in America, for the purpose of impressing upon the rest of the world the fact that Russia was turning toward conservative government. Within the last eighteen months he has visited Warsaw, Rome, Paris and London openly as Foreign Trade Commissioner. But what France may now expect from the new Russian Ambassador as a member of the "Ikki" may be revealed in a speech he made at the Twelfth Congress of the Russian Communist Party, as reported in that Party's organ the Pravda (The Truth) in its issue of April 20, 1922.

"The basic task of the foreign policy of the Soviet power," he said, "is the loosening of the world revolution in securing the maximum conditions, guaranteeing peace and a recognition of de jure and de facto economic and loans credits. The world revolution follows a laborious path, we have no miraculous means to 'loose' it. The most efficacious way of loosening the world revolution and doing it is the strengthening of the Soviet State, the Labor Peasant State."

The Baltimore Sun says that some men are born hateful and some get that way trying to seem important. Nothing is more useless than trying to seem important. It can't be done. You are important or you are not. You can't paint it on. The man who tries to appear important succeeds simply in letting everybody know that he is trying to appear important.

Mexico will establish a number of schools on the model of Tuskegee and Hampton institutes, famous Negro schools in the south. The aim is a practical system of education with special reference to character building and the fitting of men to be farmers and teachers. That is a tribute to Tuskegee and Hampton.

Edgar T. Cutter, superintendent of the Associated Press, puts a striking fact when he announces that religious news in the press of late has increased by 25 per cent. So-called "yellow journalism" at its height 25 years ago, during and right after the Spanish war, is well on the way out. Industries and institutions of practically every character have improved wonderfully in the last 25 years. Newspapers have shown extraordinary improvement. Only a newspaper which is reliable and which aims to give honest service can long survive. Ordinary competition takes care of that. A newspaper which doesn't seek to give honest service and accurate information will fade to the no-profit stage. The regular course of business will provide for its finish. Cutter calls for a greater effort toward a clean press. The effort is greater today than it ever was. British newspapers print matters that American newspapers will not print. American newspapers are the cleanest and best in the world.

Isabel Rockefeller, grand-niece of John D. Rockefeller, is an instructor in biology at Columbia university. She is rich but she wants to be useful. She wants to win by brains and not by inherited wealth. It is unusual when too much money doesn't handicap the holder. One who can rise above unwon wealth is strong indeed.

C. G. Flint, grandson of John Fiske, one of America's greatest historians, advertises he will lease himself by the year for $1,000 to do any sort of work. Last year he spent $15,000. He is "broke." He expected to be left a fortune but the fortune, to his surprise, went to somebody else. No young man can make a greater mistake than to begin early to depend on somebody else to look forward to something that may come to him sometime. To be self-reliant is to be equipped for life, no matter what happens.

Nothing in the tragic and terrible decade that we have just passed through is so pitiful and unjust as what it has done to the children of so many different countries. That these helpless millions should know nothing to show them that there are such things in the world as justice and gentleness and love—it turns one's heart cold to think of it.

The orphanage work of Near East Relief comes in such numbers that it is hard to count. The children of so many different countries should know nothing to show them that there are such things in the world as justice and gentleness and love—it turns one's heart cold to think of it.

It is a work which gets down to bed rock, lessening the amount of threat to the future which must lie in rearing these great masses of children to know nothing but bitterness and misery, starting counteracting forces of goodness and sympathy.

Yours truly,
IDA M. TARBELL.

TIMELY VIEWS ON WORLD TOPICS

"WEALTH DESIRABLE ONLY BECAUSE OF THE POWER IT GIVES," SAYS J. R. DUKE.

James B. Duke, in discussing recently his $10,000,000 gift to educational and other institutions in North and South Carolina, disclosed that his only interest in wealth was based on the power wealth gives men to do things. He said he believed that men of large fortunes should not leave to their families more than is necessary to provide for their comfort.

"I have never had any desire to accumulate wealth simply for wealth's sake," said Mr. Duke. "The only reason I have tried to accumulate wealth is that wealth gives you the power to do things."

"I don't believe the men of wealth should leave their sons unless it is to carry out some specific plan. But I have no sons, so that particular problem does not trouble me."

Wealth's Limitations
The limitations upon rich men in the personal enjoyment of their money was stressed by Mr. Duke, who said that only so much could be spent for personal gratification and that money could not be taken along upon death. He went on:

"A man who spends a lot of money in building a fine residence is benefiting a great many persons. He provides employment for just as many men as it takes to build that house and to manufacture the materials that go into the building. When the work is finished, the money he put into it is again in circulation. He has only a house and usually the market value of that house is not anywhere near what it cost to build."

Mr. Duke cited his Summer home at Somerville, N. J., which is reputed to have cost $15,000,000 as an illustration.

Mr. Duke believed that the industrial and financial progress of the United States was made possible by what is known as "big business" methods and the protective tariff.

"The trusts built up America. They doubled wages and brought property up," he said.

In connection with trusts, Mr. Duke mentioned the American Tobacco company, which was dissolved under the anti-trust laws in 1911. He declared that the company, by operating on a large scale, had been able to go into the markets of the world to meet the competition of foreign companies paying half the wages paid Americans.

"We were able to pay high wages and to meet competition in foreign markets largely because of the tariff," explained Mr. Duke.

Sees No Fall in Wages
Mr. Duke said he foresaw no possibility of wages being reduced in the immediate future, but expected rather an upward tendency as American industry expanded, provided American manufacturers were aided by a protective tariff in competition in foreign markets with products made by cheap labor.

Mr. Duke said he did not believe that a man had to have a college education to succeed in business. In one of his plants no college men are employed, and he declared that the efficiency of that plant would compare with any other plant of its kind employing college men exclusively.

"But preachers, teachers, lawyers and scientific men must be educated men," said Mr. Duke. "They must get the right kind of education. Of course, whether an education benefits a man or not depends upon the individual."

win by brains and not by inherited wealth. It is unusual when too much money doesn't handicap the holder. One who can rise above unwon wealth is strong indeed.

C. G. Flint, grandson of John Fiske, one of America's greatest historians, advertises he will lease himself by the year for $1,000 to do any sort of work. Last year he spent $15,000. He is "broke." He expected to be left a fortune but the fortune, to his surprise, went to somebody else. No young man can make a greater mistake than to begin early to depend on somebody else to look forward to something that may come to him sometime. To be self-reliant is to be equipped for life, no matter what happens.

Nothing in the tragic and terrible decade that we have just passed through is so pitiful and unjust as what it has done to the children of so many different countries. That these helpless millions should know nothing to show them that there are such things in the world as justice and gentleness and love—it turns one's heart cold to think of it.

The orphanage work of Near East Relief comes in such numbers that it is hard to count. The children of so many different countries should know nothing to show them that there are such things in the world as justice and gentleness and love—it turns one's heart cold to think of it.

It is a work which gets down to bed rock, lessening the amount of threat to the future which must lie in rearing these great masses of children to know nothing but bitterness and misery, starting counteracting forces of goodness and sympathy.

Yours truly,
IDA M. TARBELL.

Many amateur golfers have taken up the Scotch game of curling as a winter pastime and it is a common thing now for golf clubs in the Northern States to have curling ponds.

Present indications are that Dave Bancroft of the Boston Braves will have the distinction of being the only playing manager in the National league next season.

POEMS THAT LIVE

I LAY IN SORROW, DEEP DISTRESSED.

I lay in sorrow, deep distressed;
My grief a proud man heard;
His looks were cold, he gave me gold,
But not a kindly word.
My sorrow passed—I paid him back.
The gold he gave to me;
Then stood erect and spoke my thanks,
And blessed his charity.

I lay in want, in grief and pain;
A poor man passed my way;
He bound my head, he gave me bread,
He watched me night and day,
How shall I pay his back again?
For all he did to me,
Oh, gold is great, but greater far
Is heavenly sympathy.

Charles Mackay.

That Works Wonders

ASK US to show you the WorkRite Chum.
It's a great little set—with a 3-tube Reflexed Neutrodyne "hook-up" that equals any 4-tube receiver you've ever seen.

Sit at the dials yourself. Hear how sweetly and clearly the stations come in. You'll be amazed at the area you can cover with the Chum. Stations fully a thousand miles away come in regularly and undistorted on the loud speaker. And without whistles, or howls to mar your pleasure.

Space is provided in the beautiful dark mahogany cabinet for both A and B dry batteries. Works with either outdoor or indoor aerial.

Try the Chum as soon as you can. We will gladly show you any of the famous WorkRite sets. They mark the very peak of radio performance.
